3. SCH credit of .50 will stand
4. SCH credit of .75 will be rounded up

NOTE: A student will meet the ethics requirement by enrolling in either Philosophy 243, Ethics in Business, or Philosophy 241, Introductory Ethics. If a student has enrolled in either of these courses, then they will NOT need to enroll in an additional accounting elective course (AIS 603 or AI S621) to meet the business ethics and accounting credit requirements.

If a student has not taken Philosophy 243 or 241, then they can meet the 30-credit hour requirement by taking any additional upper-division accounting elective beyond what is required for degree purposes. The most common electives will be AIS 603, Financial Statement Analysis and AIS 621, Corporate Taxation. With instructor consent, however, students will be considered for other graduate-level accounting courses.

Students pursuing the Integrated Master of Accountancy degree in the WSB will complete the following courses during their undergraduate studies:

1. AIS 600 – Accountancy Internship and Practice Research (6-credits)
2. AIS 601 – Professional Practice Issues in Accounting, Auditing and Taxation (3-credits)

Students complete these courses in lieu of AIS 406, Advanced Financial Reporting, which is moved to the graduate year. Students completing AIS 600 and 601 will earn 9 total accounting credits during the semester and those credits include a significant amount of research and ethics. Specifically, 2-full credits of AIS 600 can be attributed to accounting research and .5 credits can be attributable to ethics. While students are completing their internship, they are required to research and write a 5-7 page paper on a technical topic. They are also required to reflect on their experience and consider any ethical scenarios encountered on their internship. Finally, .25 credits of AIS 601 can be attributed to ethics as students spend a full day reflecting on ethics from their internships, considering current events, and hearing from an external speaker.
